The Ohio Case. Our readers will recollect that we have all the time insisted upon it that the Ohio case ought to be decided in favor of the Democrats solely upon the ground that the courts had no right to order the certification of the election of members of the Legislature. In a word, the Constitution of Ohio makes each house of the Legislature the sole judge of the elections, qualifications, and returns of its own members. When that is said, all is said. There can be no going behind the returns in such cases. Thus it is written, and thus must stand the law.

It seems to be settled that there were frauds committed in Hamilton county in the late elections. If so, the four Republican candidates ought to have been returned as elected. But they were not so returned. They ought to be seated, of course; but they ought to be seated by the Senate itself, and not by the courts. One wrong does not justify another. It were better that ten times four members should be seated wrongfully in the Senate than that the very foundations of our republican institutions should be destroyed in the effort to right a wrong in a manner that cannot be justified by any law. To realize the magnitude of the questions involved the reader has only to recall the fact that if the courts can compel the certification of the elections of members of a State Legislature they can compel the certification of the elections of members of the national House of Representatives-the national legislature. For, if the interference of the courts in the cases of State Legislatures can be justified, or rather attempted to be justified, only by claiming that the act of interference is a purely judicial act trenching in no way upon the constitutional power accorded to each house of the Legislature, surely the State or Federal without trenching upon the rights of the House of Representatives. What a House we should have if judges such as BOND, UNDERWOOD, and others that could be named, had the power to overhaul the election returns and compel the election officers to certify the election of all the Republican candidates. What a condition of turbulence and unrest would result if it were settled that every Republican judge could compel the certification of the election of the Republican candidates for Congress, and every Democratic judge could compel the certification of the election of the Democratic candidates for Congress? Will it be said that the Ohio Senate matter? The same remark might be made of any tribunal of over and terminer; for examples, the highest Court of Appeals of any State, or the Supreme Court of the United States. Nevertheless, as human society is constituted, the final decision of all dis puted points must be intrusted to some court or body, and in the case under consideration it is intrusted to the Senate of Ohio. And free institutions will surely be at a discount the day it is settled that legislative bodies can no longer be intrusted with the duty of passing upon the elections, qualifications, and returns of their own mem-

Silver.

Mr. CLEVELAND has prepared him self to discuss the silver problem intelligently in his first annual message to ogress. Mr. MANTON MARBLE, a inguished monometallist, was some time ago sent by him to Europe to confer with statesmen and other distinguished persons on the subject. He nt to ascertain the present opinions and purposes of the various governtouching a fixed ratio between and silver, and their uncted coinage and collateral use money in domestic circulation and international exchange. It would take a half-column of the Dispatch to contain the names of the s with whom Mr. MARBLE conerred. The list includes a very large unber of well-known public men and others, such as the principal members and the finance ministers of the Govseents in London, Paris, and Berlin, and the leading economists and monetary experts of the three great Powers turope, including all the principal stallists and also the foremost lead-ere of the opposition in England. Mr, CLEVELAND acted wisely in this fiatter, though it might have been more satisfactory to all parties if he had sent However, we take it that Mr. MARBLE will make a fair and candid report of

Logan as a Missing Link. JOHN LOGAN declared at Rochester that he should "continue to shake the ensanguined garment if he had to do it solitary and alone." In consequence of that proclamation JOHN is being harshly criticised by all the Democratic and Independent journals. Our contemporaries should not be too hasty. While anything like a general wav-ing of the bloody shirt is to be deprecated, its agitation before public gaze by one man not only cannot do any harm, but in a certain sense may do good. It may prove beneficial to science. The great troudations have been secured for the memble of all evolutionists has been to find the missing link. This is the case with evolution, not merely in its application to man, but to other things. Take the case of the toed-horse, for instance. Scientists "evoluted" it up very nicely until they got rid of all superfluous toes; but the jump from the one-toed horse to the present equine is a tremendous jump in the dark. Recent events have proved that SHERMAN. FORAKER, and the rest of the malignants, are behind the times, and there has been such a general upheaval of things that they are in danger of being forgotten. The world is moving rapidly, and it is only a question of time when their theories and ideas will become matters of misty tradition. However, it will be long years before we are entirely rid of isolated and diminutive specimens of the genus South-hater. LOGAN, it would appear, comes in to fill an important gap-the gap between the political glyptodon and the political terrapin of the future. It is true that John's course tends inevitably to his political death. Yet, we know of no man the people would rather see sacrificed upon the altar of science, or, for that matter, upon any other altar. That is about the only way in which JOHN can make himself useful, and the press should not discourage him. There are two precincts in Craig county which failed to give JOHN S. WISE a single vote. If Mr. WISE moves away from Richmond, as reports say he intends to do, he will not settle in Craig county.

Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.

PETERBRURG, Nov. 9, 1885.

Some of the clerical delegates to the Virginia Annual Conference, which meets at the Washington-Street Methodist Episcopal church in this city on Wednesday of this week, have arrived in town. The great body of the delegates—clerical and lay—will reach here to-morrow. They will be met at the different trains by committees of reception, who will esthem. On occasions of this kind the hospitality of our people is by no means confined to any one religious sect, but citizens of all denominations open their houses for the accommodation of delegates. It is almost needless, there-fore, to state that abundant accommobers of the Virginia Conference and their families, if they bring them.

Bishop Randolph has consented to make a special visit to Grace Episcopal church to administer the right of confirmation on the last Sunday in this month. He comes at the request of Rev. Dr. Gibson, who will have a class to present to him on that day. This visit of the Bishop does not conflict with the regular Episcopal visitation in the spring.

The Petersburg Convocation of the Episcopal Church will hold its fall session at Nottoway Courthouse this week. The Convocation embraces within its jurisdiction the churches of Petersburg and the adjacent counties of the South Side, covering quite a large extent of territory. The deliberations of the body are confined mainly to the interests of the local Church.

Mrs. M. W., relict of the late Colonel John M. Moody, of Northampton county, N. C., died in this city on Saturday morning; aged sixty-nine years. She had been residing here for a number of years, and was greatly respected by all who knew her.

A novel election wager was paid in this city this morning—one that afforded great amusement. A bet had been made between Mr. Louis Young (Republican) and Mr. Luke Moody (Democrat) on the result of the gubernatorial election. If Wise should be elected, Moody agreed to ride Young down Sycamore street in a wheelbarrow; and vice versa, if Lee should be elected. The wager was carried out to the letter-the rolling of the barrow being done by Mr. Young. This morning at 10 o'clock Mr. Luke Moody took his seat in the wheelbarrow at the corner of Washington and Sycamore streets, and Mr. Louis Young stood between the handles ready to perform his part of the agreement. The barrow was decorated with flags, and a man with a bass drum stood in front. The novel procession as it advanced down Sycamore street was followed by a large crowd, who cheered and laughed and was witnessed by hundreds of peo-ple on the sidewalks. Several times the driver of the wheelbarrow had to stop to rest, and the crowd would stop and wait patiently for him. The journey was finally completed, amidst loud cheers by the crowd. This is the first wager of the kind ever paid in Petersburg. The crowd seemed much divided in opinion as to whether they would rather do the rolling or the riding in death is not known. It is reported that a citizen of Rives township, Prince George county, named Brigstock, a carpenter by trade, has been missing since Sunday a week ago. His disappearance has caused a great deal of uneasiness among his friends, who have made every effort to get some intelligence of his whereabouts.

Court-House Officials in Trouble [Special telegram to the Dispatch.] NORFOLK, VA., November 9.—Our court-house officials are getting into trouble. This afternoon in the Corporation Court the grand jury found true bills against Justices of the Peace Charles H. Todd and E. R. Johnson, the former for permitting liquor from his saloon to be sold to minors and the latter for performing the marriage ceremony without authority. It was testifled that the former permits liquor to be sold at his saloon on Sundays, and that keys are furnished his customers to gain access to his house.

The grand jury also report that witnesses before them testified to the fact that an arrangement existed between Justices Johnson and Todd and High-Constable Chapman by which the former received and shared with the latter 25 per cent. of the informer's part of all fines imposed by said justices. The jury further instructed the attorney for the Commonwealth to draw up an indictment against A. W. Chapman for defrauding, and state that L. S. Frost is, in their opinion, not a proper per-son to act as deputy to the high consta-

WEST VIRGINIA BAPTISTS. A Proposition for Uniting North and South it

The West Virginia Baptist General Association closed its twenty-first annual meeting last Sunday at Grafton, W. Va. There were two hundred dele gates present from the four hundred and fifty Baptist churches of the State of West Virginia, with 31,000 communicants.

Rev. W. P. Walker, of Huntington, offered a series of resolutions "humbly begging" the Southern Baptist Convention to appoint commissioners to meet like commissioners from the Bap-tists of the North to confer as to uniting the missionary organizations of the whole country. This led to a very breezy discussion, after which the mo-tion was tabled. Dr. J. W. Carter, of Parkersburg, thought the time had not come for such action. Dr. O. C. Pope, of Texas, agreed with Dr. Carter, and urged that to wait and work on under existing organizations would prove, for the present at least, the wisest course.

Rev. Thomas Allen, agent of the Missionary Union, Boston, Mass., brought forward the statistics showing how much the northern Baptists are doing and how little the southern Baptists are doing in foreign missions. Dr. Dickinson, of Richmond, Va., said: "I ask for nothing more than strict justice for the Southern Board of Foreign Missions or for the southern people in any department of Christian work. The fact that the employees of the Boston Board have baptized seventy times as many persons as the missionaries of the Richmond Board does not prove that much disproportion in the good accomplished by the two organ zations. You all know that in this country it is not always the man who is reporting the largest number of additions who is doing the most good. Often more good is done by turning people out of the Church than by bringing them in. The missions of the Richthose in China, are new missions. We are just laying the foundations in Mex-ico, Brazil, and Italy, and of course we cannot point to such ingatherings as are to be seen in missions half a century old. As to the North giving so much more than the South, let it be said in reply that the Baptists of the North are worth from ten to twenty times as much as the Baptists of the South. We give far more than they in proportion to financial ability. As to abandoning the boards of the Southern Baptist Convention, it is a mere waste of breath te talk about it. The South is becoming more solid every day, and the Christian people of all denominations in the South are becoming more solid for main-taining their own southern agencies for doing the Lord's work. may think we are fools for being thus set in our ways, but that judgment may spring from your own lack of wisdom. Your own State of West Virginia furnishes an illustration bearing on this point. How did you become a State? It was simply a war measure. The war has been over for twenty years, and yet you do not propose to abandon your separate existence as a State and come back to the old mother, and so the Southern Baptist Convention will continue its separate and independent existence without any reference to the circumstances which led to its formation, and certainly from no lack of appreciation of the noble brethren who compose the northern societies." Rev. F. P. Robertson and Rev. H. J. Chandler were appointed a committee to attend the meeting of the General Association in Richmond and present the greetings of the West Virginia Bap tist General Association. The action of the Hamilton county Circuit Court in the matter of the disputed senatorial certificates we do not regard as of any particular consequence. The decisions thus far rendered do not, as a matter of fact, materially affect the result as shown by the returns. If the returns were counted as the Court has thus far directed, they would not elect the Republican candidates for senator.

But it is a matter of no great conse quence what this court may do. The four Democratic senators who are duly and legally elected will be seated just the same. This is a matter where no court has any business to meddle, and what the Democrats have a right under the Constitution and the statutes to do they will do, and there is no more to

Circuit Court, and eventually, upon the appeal of one side or the other, get into the Supreme Court, where there may be much solemn reflection and great displays of legal acuteness and judicial wisdom. The court of last resort may decide one thing or another, but the end will be the same.

to tell you something about Colonel

"Cabell's cavalry," over which such a howl has been made. The fact is, that Colonel Cabell had nothing to do with it. The boys were appointed by Colo-nel Lewellyn, of the Young Democracy, and nobody saw them strike terror to the hearts of the poor colored men. There was a little disturbance at Wimbish's precinct, just outside the corpo-rate limits, but it was begun by a colored man. There was some crowding about the polls, and the neck of the colored man and brother accidentally came in contact with the lighted end of a cigar in the mouth of a Democrat. The negro turned round and cursed the white nan, and received a blow. A little while aftewards another colored man came up, with a pistol buckled around his waist, and again a difficulty oc-curred; but the whites were few in number, as compared with the blacks, and could have been easily overpowered by them. No weapons were used, and the whole affair was greatly exaggerated, of course, by the Republican papers. I gathered the facts from gentlemen who were on the spot. Talking about fraud, why the Martinsville Herald, one of Mahone's organs, and very bitter during the campaign, says in its last issue that the Republican vote in Patrick and Henry was the largest ever polled. It was mentioned in this correspondence some days before the election that many colored people here would vote the Democratic ticket, and the large gains in this section furnish abundant proof that the negroes de-serted Mahone. One of the most prominent colored men here, a lawyer, was a leader of the Independent movement among his people.

Our people are much interested in the forthcoming annual meeting of the Danville and New-River Railroad Company. The road has made a splendid record during the past year, and the extension across the mountains is only a question of time. Danville has groaned under the burden of heavy freight charges for some time past, as compared with similar charges to Richnond and Lynchburg, and all because "it is not a competing point," we are told. If the Danville and New-River road could be completed so as to give us an outlet to the West, we would then be in a condition to push our wholesale business. Then, too, there is no doubt that the Atlantic and Danville railroad, from Claremont, on the James river, to Danville, will be completed to this point in the near future, and this line, in connection with the D. and N., would give us all the railroad facilities we need.

Mount Vernon church will hardly be completed till about Christmas times, ing support to illiberal measures, when it is expected that Bishop Wil-Serrano became a Liberal. He was on, of Baltimore, will preach the dedicatory sermon. The new bell was heard to-day to the joy of the members, and the organ has been placed in the gallery. The church will be a splendid monument to Dr. Edwards. The North Carolina State Baptist As sociation will be held at Reidsville on Tuesday—the same day, by the way. on which the Virginia Association meets in Richmond.

Ingram is a colored Democrat, and on Saturday night Jim Hill (colored Republican) went to Ingram's house, drew a pistol on him, and declared he would kill him unless he took back what he had said about the Republican party. Again, on Sunday, Hill called at Ingram's house and tried to get him out, saying he and his friends were going to take him to task. Ingram lodged complaint here and Hill was arrested after a spirited chase. The case will be heard to-morrow. Judge A. M. Aiken, the author of the "Danville circular," in 1883, is prominently mentioned here in connec tion with the circuit judgeship. He was removed from the Corporation-Court bench by Mahone. He will be warmly supported in this section.

A Siberian Priest Ahead of Pasteur.

The French professor, Pasteur, who has made himself famous by inoculating men and cattle with disease germs to insure them against epidemics, ought to yield the palm of priority in that discovery to an humble priest of our own country. In 1868, when the Siberian plague was killing the cattle in this place. Father Andrew Joakimansky, of the Troitzky village, resorted to a desperate measure in order to save his cows. He got some blood from a dying cow, saturated threads with that blood and passed these threads through the ears of the healthy cows, numbering eleven. At the place where the ears were punctured there appeared tumors of the size of pigeon eggs. In a short time those tumors disappeared, and the cows remained alive and healthy, though the rest of the cattle of that village perished.

Senator John Sherman has come back from his missionary labors in Virginia, and the net result is probably not satisfactory to him. The appearance of the Ohio Senator on Old Dominion soil waving the ensanguined undergarment rather encouraged the Democrats than otherwise. It would have been better for the Republicans if John Sherman had stayed at home. And it would have been better for John. While he was away toiling in the vineyard of Mahone, if we may drop for a moment into Biblical allegory, the enemy came and sowed tares in Mr. Sherman's own senatorial cornfield.

The Plain Dealer had occasion to warn John some time ago that with a Republican majority of only three on joint ballot in the Legislature there was danger to John's senatorial aspirations. It warned him that he had better com back, and not to delay about it.

The Plain Dealer had information at that time that Mr. Sherman would pro-bably not be able to command the entire Republican vote in the Legislature, and that an accident might happen that would cause John much trouble. The Plain Dealer, contemplating the signs of the times, perceived indications of a move-ment having for its purpose the defeat of John Sherman for United States senator from Ohio to succeed himself. It expressed a doubt that Mr. Sherman would be his own successor. The Plain Dealer still entertains that doubt. Per-hans it is more than a doubt. It does that time that Mr. Sherman would pro haps it is more than a doubt. It does not believe that John Sherman will suc-

Marshal Serrano is dying. cisco Serrano Y. Dominguez, Duke de la Torre, was born in Spain in the year 1810. Joseph Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon, was then King. He was four years old when, chiefly as the result of British prowess as shown in the Peninsular war, the House of Bourbon was restored in the person of Fernando VII., and twenty-three years old when, in 1833, Isabel II., mother of King Alfonso XII., the present sovereign, became Queen. Serrano took part in suppressing the Carlist rebellion-1834-1839-in which a British army was engaged in the service of Isabel, who was only nine years old at the second of these dates From 1840 to 1843 Espartero, the regent, was successful in wielding supreme power in Spain against the impeting endeavors of the Queendowager Christina, but in the year last named was overthrown by a junta of which Serrano was a member. In No-vember, 1843, Isabel was declared by the Cortes to have attained her majority though she was only thirteen years old and soon after the Queen's mother returned to Madrid. Serrano's sympathies were with the tyrannical policy of Narvaez, military dictator of Spain from 1843 to 1851, whom he assisted to power. He was a courtier in favor with the young Queen, and after her marriage in 1846, great trouble arose between her and her husband on account of her intimate friendship with Serrano. After a period of years in which he was engaged more or less in political intrigue, with various results to himself, but always givgeneral of Granada. In 1854 he was exiled for complicity in an insurrection at Saragossa, but returned to Madrid the same year, and supported the O'Donnell-Espartero Cabinet. well-informed reader will remember that dissensions between the two heads of this cabinet led to Espartero's retirement in favor O'Donnell in 1856. Serrano was largely influential in bringing about this result, which took place when he was acting as captain-general of New Castile. In 1857 he was sent as Ambassador to France. He was captain-general of Madrid in 1865. A Provisional Government was set up in 1868, and Queen Isabella fled to France. This revolution was the work of Prim, Topete, and Serrano as its leaders, and its success led to Serrano's becoming commander-in-chief of the army and President of the Council. In became Regent of Spain. He held this position until the Italian Prince Ama-deo accepted the crown. The republic was established in 1873, the Exec tive being assumed by the Cortes and King Amadeo having resigned his office; and in 1874 Marshal Serrano became President. He held the Executive office until 1875, when Alfonso XII. became King of Spain, thus re-turning the House of Bourbons to power the second time after the depositien of Fernando VII. in 1808.
